to this reasonable request for "correspondence," the Governor remarked, with that suave manner the temporary fascination of which is proverbial, that "the returns asked for by Mr. Lowcock he would have much pleasure in supplying without a motion." It was apparently in the minds of the unofficial members—Messrs Lowcock and Keswick—that the production of the correspondence asked for would clear up many misunderstandings and doubts that had arisen or rather that had been raised on the subject of deportation. When the motion had been duly proposed and seconded, His Excellency is reported to have said—

When my hon. friend gave notice of his motion at the last meeting I had the satisfaction of telling him that on behalf of the Government I at once consented to the motion. I think it is very desirable these papers should be laid before the Council, and when the notice was given I requested my friend the Colonial Secretary to put together all these papers, and they are now being prepared for printing. When printed they will be laid before you. I have thought it well, at the same time, to add a little more than the papers called for. I understand my hon. friend's motion would begin with April, 1877, which was the date of my arrival. Well, it so happens that going back a few months before my arrival, taking the year 1876, some light is thrown on the way in which the Deportation Ordinance was worked in the colony. In illustration I may mention a case in which on one day in 1876 there came before the Executive Council, under the presidency of Sir Arthur Kennedy, recommendations for the deportation of five offenders. The recommendations were duly considered by the Executive Council, and in the result three of the persons recommended to be deported, were not deported, and only two out of the five were deported. I think it would be well for the Council to know the reasons which influenced my predecessor in not carrying out the recommendations of the Magistrates in those cases. There are also a few earlier papers still which throw some light upon it.

From the above remarks it would be fair to assume that Mr. Hennessy placed himself on the defensive, and in point of fact the latter part of his speech on that occasion was nothing if not a defence of his policy as regards the important subject of deportation. It will be seen, however, that His Excellency not only hastened to facilitate the views of the unofficial members, but actually volunteered to give more information than was asked for. Of course there is a bare possibility that, seeing a storm brewing on the question under discussion, he thought he might as well be in the good company of his predecessor, and furnish returns which might expose some of the questionable official line of a former régime, as well as some of his own. Be this as it may, the production of the correspondence was promised; and there the matter rests for the present, as so many matters do, have done, and will continue to do, especially under the present administration.

As the Governor intimated that a portion of the correspondence thus sought after would be produced before the Police Committee, and as the labours of this body must have been long ago completed, it is possible that the delay may have arisen from the almost insuperable difficulties which an extra crop of Commissioners presented to the hard-working and energetic Government Printer. As this latter gentleman deserves the greatest credit for the manner in which he has battled against the misfortune of the Great Fire, there is ample justification for any delay which may be attributed to this source; but it would have been satisfactory to the public and their representatives on the Council had some explanation been given touching this important subject. If we have not misinterpreted the position assumed by His Excellency when the Police Committee was nominated, that inquiry must naturally have been narrowed to matters of a more strictly departmental nature; and the result of their labours, however valuable they may be as bearing upon the policing of the town and suburbs at night, is not likely to throw much light on the doubts and misunderstandings that have arisen on the subject of deportation. It may be doubted whether these misunderstandings and doubts will ever be thoroughly cleared up, as it is acknowledged that Mr. Hennessy has a remarkable reputation for "proving his case" in the face of the greatest difficulties. Messrs Lowcock and Keswick will do well, therefore, being, as they are, with the exception of the newspaper press, the only opposition with which the Governor has to deal—to stick to their text, and when they ask for correspondence, "see that they get it."

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

(Supplied to the "CHINA MAIL.")

(Per E. E. & Co. Telegraph Co's. Line.)

LONDON, 6th February, 1879.

A new French Ministry has been formed as follows:—
Waddington (President), Lepere Leon Say, Martore, Leroyer, Janquiquier, Freycinet, Mercier Despres, Ferry.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

The M. M. steamer Ada, with the French mails, arrived in the Harbour as we go to press.

We are informed by the Superintendent that the P. & O. S. Geelong, with the next English mail, left Singapore for Hongkong at 3 p.m. on Monday, the 3rd inst.

The Royal Tycoon Japanese Troupe arrived from Calcutta in the steamer Moray last Wednesday, and intends to give two performances in the City Hall Theatre on Saturday, the 15th, and Monday the 17th inst. This troupe has just returned from a tour through India, and has, it is said, performed before H. E. the Viceroy and most of the native rajahs.

As the S. S. Yangtze was leaving the Harbour last evening, about 6 o'clock, she collided with a stone-junk, near Pui-chung-wan. The junk, which was stone-laden, was endeavouring apparently to cross the steamer's bow, and the steamer cut her right down. She sunk almost immediately. Two lads are said to be missing, but the remainder of the crew, 18 in number, were picked up by the steamer and sent in by the pilot boat. The steamer then proceeded.

TELEGRAPHIC communication has been established with Green Island. This was done some months back, owing to an attack having been made on the lightkeepers' quarters by a gang of pirates. The work was no doubt expensive, but considering the isolated condition of the lightkeepers, the expense was warranted. It has often occurred to us that the same thing might be done between this and the opposite peninsula. The population there is increasing rapidly, and there is in consequence a large increase of valuable property. It behoves us therefore to see that every precaution is taken to make life and property secure. Pirates have there no water to cross, no vigilant police in swift steam-launches to evade and no military to fear. Rockets of course might be used to answer the same purpose, or a gun might be fired; but these methods take time and might not be observed or properly understood. In such cases every moment is precious, while the cable not only transmits messages instantaneously, but the exact state of affairs can be flashed across, as it never can be done by the aid of rockets. The only drawback to a sub-marine cable across the bay would be the danger of vessels fouling it with their anchors, but this danger might, we think, be obviated by keeping a clear line buoyed off, within which all vessels would be prohibited from anchoring. Vessels could easily be made acquainted with this prohibition in the day time, and at night the Water Police could warn any stray vessel which might arrive.

It is some time since that we reported the appointment of Ting Futai as a sort of Special Commissioner to inquire into and arrange the Wu-shih-shan affair, and it now appears that the inquiry is about to enter another phase. We learn that the native owners or lessors of the property have resolved upon bringing the matter before H.M.'s Consul at Foochow in his judicial capacity, and to fight it out in an English Court upon its actual and legal merits. Although we have taken no side as yet in the merits of this unfortunate dispute, it must be matter for congratulation that the Chinese Authorities have sanctioned such a step as that proposed, and it is clearly a hopeful sign when such disputes are permitted to be thus dealt with. Still it must be admitted that the owners or lessors of the property on Wu-shih-shan Hill would have been able to assume a much more dignified air in Court had they refrained from "leaving all bricks" and otherwise shown defiance to treaty rights, law and order generally. But, on the other hand, it is certainly indicative of a desire to see fair-play and justice done when the legal rights involved are submitted to a foreign Court. The case will be one of some interest and no small importance. Mr. T. C. Hayllar, Q.C., has been retained, we understand, by the Chinese owners of the property, and that gentleman leaves this for Foochow in a few days to conduct the case on their behalf. Failing the acceptance of certain propositions by the missionaries, the course above indicated, we hear, will be followed by the learned Council.

Messrs Hughes & Legge's Market Report for the French Mail has the following:—
CATTLE.—The only business done in Cardiff since date of our last issue, has been a sale of 1,000 tons in godown at $2.25. Telegraphic advice from London reports nothing on the way for sale, except the Jacobs, and it seems as if any demand must improve rates.

In Australia, beyond the sale of 1,800 tons of Dunderfeld at $3.00 to consumer, the week has been unproductive of business, and it is difficult to quote exactly. Holders are firm in asking full rates; but dealers keep out of the market for the present, believing that later on prices will again recede to a point to tempt purchases. The cargo of the Charlton is being landed.
Arrivals.—Jan. 31, S.S. Charlton, 1,200 tons, New Lambton; Feb. 6, Deux Freres, 500 tons, Dunderfeld, for sale.
Settlements.—Strathgairn, 1,200 tons, Dunderfeld, at $3.00; Rz Godown, 1,050 tons, Cardiff, at $3.25.

Vessels expected.—The undermentioned are the cargoes destined for this port from the United Kingdom and the Colonies:—Oct. 16, Sept. 26, Clinroom, 2,629 tons; Oct. 16, Jacobs, 604 tons; and Rosine, 1,860 tons; Dec. 21, Largo, 1,000 tons; 23, R. Stanhope, 500 tons; 26, Wandering Minstrel, 500 tons.

Exports.—John Franklin, 600 tons; P. O. Trinidad, 2,000 tons; Crangle Lea, 900 tons; Nehemiah Gibson, 900 tons; B. F. Watson, 1,800 tons; Penobscot, 900 tons; Orange Grove, 600 tons; and Carrie Wyman, 575 tons.
Cargoes marked thus are Welsh; the others are Australian.

MONOPOLISING THE STREETS.
Wong Tak, master of ship No. 163, Wing Lok Street West, was charged with obstructing a public street by packing goods on the sidewalk. He admitted the offence and was fined $10. The same defendant was fined a further sum of $15 for having repeated the offence the following day.

LARCENY.

How Akwai, a fortune-teller, was sent to 6 months' hard labour for stealing a silk umbrella, valued at $2.

The case in which one Wan Aka, a school boy, was charged with stealing a fur coat valued at $200 came on for hearing again to-day. Inspector Lindsay stated that the owner of the coat had left the Colony, and he was therefore, he feared, unable to proceed with the case. The defendant is charged with the case. The defendant is charged with the case. The defendant is charged with the case.

(Before C. V. Creagh, Esq.)

ALLEGED STARTING OF BOARD SHIP AT YOKOHAMA.

John Linstrum and Edward Caroe, seamen, were again charged on remand with cutting and wounding one Frederick Barnes, another seaman on board the British barque Sir Lancelot, at Yokohama. The prisoners were committed for trial; the 2nd being admitted to bail in two sureties of $50 each.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT OF $11,000.

Foong Ayow, described as a comrade to Messrs Nurey Kessowjee & Co., was charged with embezzling $11,000 or thereabouts, the moneys of his employers, with which he was entrusted by virtue of his employment.

Mr Caldwell (from Mr Brereton's office) appeared to prosecute, and Mr Dennis appeared to defend the case on behalf of the defendant.

Mahomed Khetsey, the managing partner, was first called and deposed to the defendant being employed by his firm during the last 5 years as Comptroller. Witness was now bankrupt. We have (he said) sometimes paid money to him. It is part of his duty to receive money on behalf of the firm. All moneys pass through his hands; he collects all moneys from all customers of the firm, and he has to account to the firm. If the amount received by him on any occasion is very large, say $40,000 or $50,000, it is his duty to report the matter at once, but trifling amounts he merely enters in his books, and accounts for them once or perhaps twice a month. The longest interval between the times of making up accounts with him has been one month. My clerk will know better than I. I used to take the account myself, but during the last three years my clerk has attended to it. The clerk would compare the books and then show them to me. On these periodical adjustments of account, if the balance is large, it is at once sent to the Bank, but if not considerable it would be left in the comptroller's hands. I would call $10,000 an inconsiderable sum. Sometimes this would be left in his hands and sometimes sent to the Bank. It is certainly his duty to produce the balance whenever called upon. The books were last compared yesterday by my clerk (Abdoolah Hossein). The clerk reported the result of his examination, and I sent for the defendant and asked him to produce the balance in order that I might send it to the Bank. I said to him "Have got no much balance, bring come, I want to send it perhaps to Court, perhaps to Bank." He appeared quite frightened when I spoke to him and said "no got." When the warrant was issued and he was arrested, he said he would not pay it. I do not sign his cash book when we compare books. He should now have $11,045 in his hands. It was part of his regular business to pay bills if I ordered him. There were no orders, so far as I know, outstanding as against the balance he should have had in his hands. I cannot say what the defendant's salary was; I think $30 or $35; but he made about $4,000 one way and another. He used to get $1 and sometimes $2 whenever a chest of opium was sold. I never saw him receive this, but I know it to be the custom.

By Mr Dennis.—The comptroller provides and secures the servants, and has power to dismiss them. He also pays them. I don't know how he pays them. He pays them out of the $30 or $35 he is paid by my firm. The number of servants are, he says, the comptroller's affair and four coolies. I have been off and on in the Colony since 1856. I was here when the defendant was engaged. For all cargo sold to Chinese by my firm the comptroller was security. Whenever goods are sold to Chinese the sale is entered in my books to the debit of the persons to whom they are sold. The comptroller enters the sale also in his book, and when he receives the money he comes to me and tells me, and the amount is marked off, he being debited with the cash. No one has ever failed to pay. At least the prisoner has never complained of any one neglecting to pay; if such is the case we have no knowledge of it. The buyer or seller of goods amongst Chinese pay the comptroller's commission. He must have received thousands of dollars by way of commission during the year. I cannot fix the amount. It is for this reason that he stopped in my service. I never before had a settlement of accounts with the comptroller at which all the money in his hands has been demanded and paid over. The balance now in his hands has not been accumulating for years. I cannot remember if at any time the firm was indebted to the comptroller. I am not aware that any one offered to compromise the matter with the defendant for $6,000. My firm's petition in bankruptcy was filed on the 15th January inst.

By His Worship.—Defendant never bought goods from me or sold goods to me in his own name. Abdoolah Hossein was next called, and stated that he was clerk to the last witness. He kept all the accounts and had been in the firm three years and nine months. The book produced was the firm's cash book and was written by witness. It commenced 28th October, 1876, and terminated on 5th February this year. At this stage the enquiry was adjourned for one week, as the witness could not understand Hindustani sufficiently well to follow the Court interpreter, and a substitute could not be obtained on the spot. The defendant was admitted to bail in $5,000.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL."

Hongkong, Feb. 7, 1879.

SIR,—In answer to a letter in the Daily Press signed "One of the racing boats," I beg to say that it is utterly wrong. As to "The Small Fish" claiming the stakes, it was merely a matter of opinion with a few onlookers as to whether the race should be run over, or only the two winning boats should run against the only boat that rendered assistance, viz., "Marquis of Argyle." There being no committee to decide, it was therefore agreed between a few boats—which being so far to leeward and having no chance to compete with the Sailor's Home boat, or The Small Fish gave up and called it no race—to run again, so that they might have a chance of re-entering another time without paying the entrance fee with hopes of better success. The Small Fish is perfectly willing to run the race over again, and double the stakes, so that the correspondent referred to can have a chance of testing his boat against his antagonist The Small Fish and learning him which is port and star-board.—By inserting these few lines you will greatly oblige.

Yours &c.,

THE SMALL FISH.

FOREIGN STEAMERS IN CHINA.

The subjoined extract from the Shenpao will, we think, be read with much interest generally:—
Of the many innovations introduced into China by foreigners, none can at present appeal more directly to their faculties than the Foreign steamer. A passenger accustomed to rude native boats, when stepping for the first time on board a well-appointed steamer, cannot but reflect that here he sees evidence of wealth, power, discipline and skill, foreign to his native land; and further thought must suggest the question, Are these strangers, then, really the rude outer people we have been taught to look down upon as beyond the pale of the civilising influence of the Middle Kingdom and Celestial teachings? The same thought must also arise to the native visitor to Shanghai, when he walks along the Bund and compares the mansions of the "Yang-hangs" to his own puny dwellings. But the steamer, inasmuch as it penetrates throughout the land, has doubtless been the greatest lever towards removing the barrier of self superiority assumed—an ignorant prejudice which, although it may still find vent in words, no longer, we think, really exists in mind.

Next to steamers, perhaps no movement can have been more striking than the vehicle inaugurated for the expression of public opinion by newspapers. It is now over six years since the Shenpao was started in Shanghai. At first, many officials, from the fact of its articles presuming to discuss questions of administration, affected to despise the organ and refused to subscribe. Gradually, they found their acts argued by men, their equals in culture and intelligence, and in such a way as rendered it at least advisable to read. Next, they thought it would at times be desirable to guide, by attempting to dictate what should be inserted and what suppressed. Lastly, they found that a newspaper, however advantageous to the people, was not only inconvenient to themselves by undermining that almost despotic power pertaining to provincial and departmental rule, but actually dangerous in exposing malfeasances, which otherwise would not have come to light. Then followed the determination that the Shenpao should not be suffered to exist. The officials of Shanghai, at the outset, deemed it a matter that could be disposed of locally, and directed their attack against the native employees. Finding that there were questions of Foreign interest not to be treated so summarily; they then resolved to run the paper down by an opposition journal. The result is known to our readers. In the meanwhile, more than one High Provincial Official memorialised the Throne to have the Shenpao stopped. The answer from Peking to all these did not transpire, but one to the Governor of Chekiang is said to be on record to the effect that the Shenpao was a foreign undertaking and could not be closed without reason; moreover, that the person of the Shenpao gave satisfaction in Peking.

Here have we proof that the Imperial Government of China has awakened to the fact that there is a means introduced by foreigners, by which an insight into the internal affairs of the nation may be gained otherwise than through the ex parte word, but too often, suppression of statements of its own officials. And, that it does not pass over all accounts in the newspapers, unnoted, may be instanced by the frequent appearance of memorials from Governors in the Peking Gazette, suggesting reforms which had previously been advocated in the columns of the Shenpao. The most recent of the Press in China, is the growing in the Peking Gazette of the 4th of the 11th month of last year. It is a memorial from Mei, the Governor of Chekiang, in reply to an edict addressed to the Privy Council.—"A certain person memorialises that the troops (around Hangchow) have been committing disturbances, and that acts of robbery are continually arising. Let instructions be given to investigate the circumstances. Respect this."—The edict was sent by the Council to the Governor, and it is evident from the contents of the memorial in reply that the Council had adverted to several cases of robbery and disturbances narrated by the Shenpao, asking why these had not been reported; for the Governor states in reply to the throne:—"In reference to cases of robbery around Hangchow, at Tang chih-yuh, Chih-shan fong, and Hal-chan-chi, &c., in the 4th moon, reported by the Shenpao, which irritate Chinese and foreign news in the Settlement of Shanghai, your servant humbly reports as follows, &c., &c." Here the name of a newspaper appears for the first time in the Gazette; and however small a recognition, a step is thereby marked. It proves to the people that in their papers they are not unheeded. It proclaims that a new tribunal is arising which the local rulers cannot treat with contempt and disdain. Already have the provincial officials of the province, from the Footstool down to the Oneshien, been given to the Shenpao the persistent and atrocious attempt of the Oneshien to trump up a case of murder against an enemy, and the venal manner in which his inquiry was condoned by his superiors in office. And again, it is but lately that influential Chinese have spontaneously acknowledged formally the great work of the Shenpao in reference to the late famine, confessing that had not appeals to people's feelings been published by it far and wide, and an incentive to subscriptions given by printing in the paper lists of names of donors, the collections would not have reached one-fourth of their present total.

Newspapers have thus, from the standpoint of the Foreign Settlement of Shanghai, established a respected footing in the country; and, if suffered to continue extending their field, should exert an influence for good, secondary to no other movement. But while according to them full value in their possible advocacy of progress and their adoption of European institutions, their greatest sphere of usefulness will be in their check to judicial corruption and official oppression. The Government of Peking has shown itself ready to sanction and make use of the movement, but if desirous that papers should work their full measure of good, we would join on it one policy; i.e., an end to that secrecy of all judicial and official acts throughout the provinces. This is the great obstacle that now bars the advance of the Press. By the law of China, all judicial cases should be conducted in open Court, access being given to the outside public. But this rule is invariably infringed, and proceedings carried on in an inner chamber, or, if in the outer hall, arrangements are so made that listeners cannot approach sufficiently near to hear and note. The reasons for this jealous secrecy in which the officials envelop their proceedings, are manifold; and if the Imperial Government has really the interests of the people at heart, the old law of publicity should be rigidly enforced. With open Courts and with reporters fearless enough to report truly, and consciences enough to reject bribery; with a Government also ready to work and enquire into cases of injustice; the people of China would then, apart from steamers and science, have cause to look back with thankfulness to the first advent of foreigners to their land.—N. O. D. News.

MERCHANT MARINE.

HOW THE NAVIES OF DIFFERENT NATIONS COMPARE.

(New York Shipping List.)

Statistics of the mercantile navies of the world for the present year are now published; they relate, of course, to sea-going vessels only. British vessels, that is, all sailing under the British flag, whether owned in Great Britain or the colonies, show an addition in number and total tonnage both of sailing vessels and steamers, as compared with 1877; the average size of sailing vessels has decreased from 81.150 tons, while that of steamers has increased from 1048 to 1077 tons. The United States comes second, though with a mighty gap between her and Great Britain, which has been increased instead of diminished during the year. American vessels, both sailing and steam, showing a falling off in number and total tonnage from the previous year. The average size of sailing vessels is 343 against 340 tons; that of steamers has fallen from 1244 to 1181 tons. Norway holds third place in sailing vessels, but not in steamers, being very far behind in this class of ships; the average size of her sailing vessels is 381 tons against 337 for sailing vessels in steamers. Below we give a table of the vessels of each country as they rank by gross tonnage in 1878:

The total tonnage of the sailing vessels has decreased 581,055 tons, while that of steamers has increased 87,476 tons, which leaves a net decrease during the year in the tonnage of the world's mercantile marine of 493,579 tons, the combined tonnage of steamers and sailing vessels being 19,813,247 in 1878, against 20,306,820 in 1877.

NITRATE OF SODA THE ONLY GENUINE PRESERVATIVE OF FEMALE BEAUTY.

Mr Jamrach, the animal dealer, of St. George's-street East, writes Mr Frank Buckle land in Land and Water that he had just received a valuable and interesting mummy from Peru. "The box containing the Peruvian was in an attic when the lid was suddenly taken off the box I confess for a moment that the sight gave, as they say, a bit of a turn. The body was covered with crystals that shone like mica scales, and gave it a peculiar ghastly appearance. The history of this specimen is as follows:—It was discovered in a nitre mine at Iquique, in Peru, and is supposed to be of very great antiquity. It is the body of a female; the lady must have had very long and beautiful hair, she wore it in plaits hanging over her shoulders and down her back. One of the plaits still bears traces of a rude ornament. The skin of the face is dried up and bears marks upon it as though it had once been enveloped in a cloth. The arms are laid by the side, one knee is crossed over the other. On making a more careful inspection I ascertained from the appearance of the ends of the bones that this was a mummy of a female about fourteen years old. The eyes are staring wide open, the tongue adherent to the roof of the mouth. I do not know whether this Peruvian girl had been buried, or whether she had by accident fallen down into the nitre mine, or if the nitre had fallen down upon her from above and so caused her death. It is, of course, impossible to state the date of this mummy. I see that in the country adjacent the Pacific, Peru, saltpetre is abundant, and that great quantities are exported by English vessels. This mineral is not a nitrate of soda. Nitrate of soda was one of the substances used by the ancient Egyptian priests in making their mummies."
